This course specification provides a summary of the main features of the course, identifies the aims and learning outcomes of the course, the teaching, learning and assessment methods used by teaching staff, and the reference points used to inform the curriculum.

This information is therefore useful to potential students to help them choose the right course of study, to current students on the course and to staff teaching and administering the course.

Further detailed information on the individual modules within the course may be found in the relevant module descriptors and the Course Handbook provided to students on enrolment.

Please refer to the Course and Module Catalogue for further information on the course structure and modules.

Educational aims of the course

- To enable students to develop a sound knowledge and understanding of the academic discipline of politics
- To enable students to understand and apply key concepts, approaches and critiques within the field of Politics and to appreciate its contested nature
- To enable students to develop knowledge of historical and contemporary politics and to encourage critical thinking about a range of political phenomena (including events, issues, change, values, ideas and institutions) in a global context
- To equip students with the necessary transferable skills for lifelong learning and graduate employment in the context of changing labour markets.
- To provide students with the skills and the knowledge required to maximise career and postgraduate study opportunities
- To provide an opportunity for students to gain experience and skills relevant to employment or further study within the Politics and International Relations subject area by choosing relevant work placement and/or study abroad options.

Course Learning Outcomes and Learning, Teaching and Assessment Strategies

The Quality Assurance Agency for Higher Education \(QAA\) sets out a national framework of qualification levels, and the associated standards of achievement are found in their Framework for Higher Education Qualifications document.

The Course Learning Outcomes for this course are outlined in the tables below.

A. Knowledge and understanding of:

LO number	Learning outcome	Learning and Teaching methods	Assessment methods
A1	The relations between human beings and their sociopolitical and ecological environments at local, national and global levels in both historical and contemporary setting
A2	The concepts, theories and methods to the analysis of political ideas, actors, institutions and behaviour.
A3	Politics as a subject which is concerned with developing a knowledge and understanding of government and society. The interaction of people, ideas and institutions provides a basis for understanding how values are allocated and resources distributed at local, sectoral, national, regional and global levels. Thus, fostering an understanding of who gets what, when, how, why and where are central to the discipline, as are questions about the nature and oversight of decision-making.
A4	Politics as a subject which is concerned with the analysis of power relations, how power is used to create and reproduce patterns of privilege and in/exclusion, and how these structures and patterns are resisted and challenged. As such, the study of Politics explores complex, controversial and contested ideas.	These are developed through a combination of lectures, seminars, tutorials, workshops, student and tutor led sessions, skills, discussion and knowledge-based classes, simulation exercises. Methods vary based on the topics being covered	Essays, exams, reports, portfolios, dissertation, presentations, infographics, projects, reports, seminar performance, briefing papers, creating documentaries and blog posts and group and individual work

A5	Definitions of key concepts within the discipline, reflect the contested nature of power relations, as expressed in the maxim that 'the personal is political'.

B. Cognitive (Intellectual or Thinking) skills, able to:

LO number	Learning outcome	Learning and Teaching methods	Assessment methods
B1	Plan, execute and present an independent piece of work, in which qualities such as time management, problem solving and independence are evident, as well as interpretation and evaluation of the quality of evidence.	These outcomes are developed primarily through seminars, tutorials, workshops, student and tutor-led sessions, skills, discussion and knowledge-based classes, and simulation exercises. Methods vary based on the topics being covered	Essays, exams, reports, portfolios, dissertation, presentations, infographics, projects, reports, seminar performance, briefing papers, creating documentaries and blog posts and group and individual work
B2	Construct reasoned argument, synthesising relevant information and exercising critical judgement
B3	Understand and apply the principles of ethical research as well as demonstrate appropriate behaviour and academic practice.
B4	Identify, investigate and solve problems through lateral thinking to develop solutions, thinking creatively in both practical and theoretical contexts
B5	Recognise and reflect on feedback to critically analyse and improve their work

C. Practical (Professional or Subject) skills, able to:

LO number	Learning outcome	Learning and Teaching methods	Assessment methods
C1	Identify, interpret and apply appropriate methods of data collection and analysis (both qualitative and quantitative)
